BIOGRAPHY

Neché is a Nigerian songwriter and worship artist. She writes and arranges original songs and worship medleys rooted in contemporary African worship and gospel, releasing them across every major streaming platform.

Her music grows out of scripture, prayer, and personal testimony — unhurried, congregational songs built to be sung together. She is known for extended worship medleys and live worship sessions that carry one song into the next without breaking the moment, including her recurring True Worship gatherings.

As host and convener of GospelFest, Neché brings artists and congregations together for a gospel concert built around worship and ministry — leading not only as a performer but as an organiser and convener. Alongside it she hosts music concerts and programs that spotlight songs and the stories behind them.

Her catalogue includes the singles Grateful (2026), OBIM, The Lamb and Nothing Else (2025) and Champion (2024), alongside worship covers such as her rendition of Theophilus Sunday’s Adullam. She features as a worship artist on CCE Ministries’ single I Have Jesus.

"Music, for me, is worship: a way of writing what's hard to say and offering it back as song."

Still early in her journey and building it one song at a time, Neché’s mission is to create worship music that leads people into God’s presence, while bringing hope, healing, and transformation to lives around the world.
